

Steve Eckler, Photographer, Baldwinsville, NY

When I look through the camera lens my objective is to record the intersection of the past and present, as well as the blending of the human and natural environments; dust and rust contrasting with the vivid beauty of our world. It's a journey across time and geography.