

Gary Larsen

Biography

Although I have lived in 12 different states, I now live and photograph often in the Adirondack Mountains of Upstate New York. But I still travel and photograph throughout the U.S. and into Canada. I have been deeply interested in photography for over 30 years.

My work has been displayed in many shows locally and across the US and has won numerous awards... including the 2018 Grand Prize in the "Adirondack Life" magazine photo contest. I have also self-published three books and have had photographs published in "Shutterbug" and "Country Living" magazines.

Statement

Drawn to the influence of light on texture and shape, my images are intended to evoke introspection and imagination. These dramatically powerful black and white photographs are a reflection of a brief emotional reaction from the only moment the light and subject were creating my experience. As I opened the shutter, I knew that what I saw would never be the same again.

My images can be seen on a purely abstract level of shapes and tones in pleasing patterns. Or, they can draw the observer into a familiar emotional identification. In either case, I hope that they create a meaningful personal message worth sharing.
